The Short Game Part 1 of 3

In truth there really isn't just one short game, there are three. The first is our full wedges, say 70 to 110 yard shots. The second is our 20 to 60 yard shots and the third part of our short game is inside 20 yards (our chipping and pitching.) Today we'll take a look at the full wedge shots. Almost all the best players in the world play with three wedges and so should you. Usually a pitching wedge, sand wedge and a lob wedge. I think it is very important that three wedges be of the same make and model so you are certain of the different lofts of each club and know the exact yardage you hit each one. Whatever method you use to determine your yardage with each club is up to you. I just can't emphasize enough the importance that you know your yardage with each wedge.
